Each year thousands of youth are discharged from foster care across the nation because they reach the age at which they are no longer eligible for foster care. Research indicates that many youth who are emancipated from foster care experience difficulties in their attempts to be self-sufficient. Beginning in October 2010, the US government is requiring all states to track the independent living services provided to youth in out-of-home care.

Youth input is very important to understanding the extent to which young adults are prepared to live independently, as they exit foster care. Your feedback, along with foster youth from other states, will help states and the nation as a whole learn what changes need to be made to help youth be successful young adults, as they transition from being in foster care to being self-sufficient. We need your help!

There are only 35 questions in this survey, and it shouldn't take longer than 10 or 15 minutes to complete. If at any time during the survey you need to exit, be sure to save your responses, then close your browser. Until you choose to submit your answers on the final page of the survey, you can log in again at any time to change your responses.
